

when some private may offer them an inadequate compensation, with the certainty that if the inventor rejects his offer and he does not procure a patent, he adopts the inventions at the expiration of the year —

Perhaps a clear year after the close of the Exhibition of 1851. would satisfy all parties.

Aug. 7th — J. H. Wood